Senior Leadership changes at OZ Minerals

OZ Minerals Chief Executive Officer, Andrew Cole, today announced changes to OZ Minerals' Executive Committee.

"Chief Operating Officer, Bob Fulker, has resigned to take up the position of Chief Operating Officer at Evolution Mining. We congratulate Bob and thank him for his contribution to the improved operational performance of the company over the past two years.

"OZ Minerals has also created a new executive level role, Chief Commercial Officer, accountable for delivering new operating assets into the OZ Minerals portfolio including the Carrapateena copper gold project and the West Musgrave copper nickel project.

"Experienced resources industry executive, Mark Irwin, will permanently transition into the Chief Commercial Officer role from January 2018. Mark joins OZ Minerals from international mining services company Boart Longyear where he held the role of Chief Commercial Officer, based in the United States. Mark has held senior executive roles with BHP, Graincorp and Transfield Services.

"The search for a new Chief Operating Officer will begin in the New Year. In the interim, the General Managers for Prominent Hill and Carrapateena operations will join the Executive Committee," Mr Cole said.

Incoming Chief Financial Officer, Warrick Ranson, joins OZ Minerals on 4 December 2017.
